THE INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION

IN '92. The cordial co-operative interest manifested by the representatives of the several railroad lines tributary to Washington at the conference yesterday with a committee of the Board of Promotion of the grand international exhibition of the arts, industries and resources of the three Americas, proposed to be held at the National Capital in 1899, is significant of the feeling being aroused in favor of the grand project, and is a decidedly encouraging omen of the success of the enterprise.

As a relief from the turmoil of the late political campaign, what a grand measure this is to unite the sentiment of the people of all parties and sections, in urging upon Congress the passage of the bill unanimously reported by the House Committee on Foreign affairs, providing for an exhibition for the millions of visitors from all parts of the world of the wonderful arts, resources, and industries of the American republic in friendly competition with the exhibits of the Dominion of Canada and of Central and South America, side by side, at the National Capital in 1802!

What grander project can be devised to properly commmemorate the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America than to provide for an exhibition at the Capital of the Commanding Republic of the developement, progress and resources of the Western Hemisphere? It is a project which should arouse the patriotism of all citizens with genuine enthuwas, in many particulars, a most remarkable success. It is difficult to get at numbers, but there were probably 5,000 men in line, and this number would have been largely increased if the weather had been less threatening. It was a thoroughly enthused crowd, and yet the order was uniformly good, and no disturbances arose. When it is considered that such a demonstration occurs in a city where there are no voters, where political organization is natlacking in the essential element which must give coherence, and further, when the party represented has been out of power for four years, the energy and enterprise displayed and the loyalty to party which so evidently and enthusiastically manifests itself, are worthy of recognition and commenda tion. A great victory must necessarily have a warming and reviving effect, but a great revival and the spirit moved the

A Wrecked Yessel Returned The Navy Department has been informed that the schooner Jane Gray was turned over to her owners in San Francisco. This vesse was wreeked in the Arctic Ocean, but was af-terward raised by Commander Emory, of the United States atennier Thatis, temporarily re-paired and the property which had been taken from her recovered from other vessels and sent in charge of a naval officer to San Fran-cisco. the longevity of man. He says; There is an appointed time for every living thing, extending from the brief period of the ephemera, often less than an lour, to the age of some of the largest trees, which may reach to several thousand years. Among animals we have been able to note the ages of many classes, that is the time when most of the species die. It has been estimated that we may determine the probable duration of life by that of the various stages of growth, maturity and decline, which are somewhat regular. are somewhat regular. The old adage, seen ripe, seen to decay, has a foundation of truth. We judge of the age of animals by their rate of growth, and we speak of precoclous children as having grown too rapidly for long life.

Observation shows that the first 20 years of man's life is the stage of growth, then 30 years of maturity and 20 for the then 30 years of maturity and 20 for the period of decline, making the allotted 70 years. Dr. Riehardson, of London, divides life in seven periods. (1) from birth to 15 years, completed childhood; (2) from 15 years to 30, completed adolescence; (3) from 30 years to 45, completed manhood or womanhood; (4) from 45 to 60, ripened manhood or womanhood; (5) from 60 to 75, first period of decline; (6) from 75 to 90, second period of decline; (7) from 90 to 100 or upward, period of senile maturity. ien 30 years of maturity and 20 for the

Prof. Gustafson, in his work, "The Foundation of Death," says: "The present average age of man is not over 50 years. Herodotus says of the Macro-bians (Ethiopians), in the time of Cam-byses, that they were remarkable for their beauty and their massive propor-tions of body, in both of which they surpassed all other men. They lived to be 120 years old, and some to a longer period, and yet, they fed on recept men. period, and yet they fed on roasted ment and used milk for their drink." Dr. John Richard Farre, when examined before the parliamentary committee, in 1834, appointed to inquire into the cause and extent of drunkenness, gave it as his opinion that the life of man is 120

Professor P. Flourens, of the College Professor P. Flourens, of the College of France, in his work on human longevity [Faris, 1854], considers 100 years to be the normal length of man's life. "Few men, indeed," he says, "reach that age, but how many do what is necessary to reach it? With our way of living, our passions and worries, man no longer dies, but kills himself. To prolong life, that is to make it last as long as the constitution indicates that it should, there is a means, and a very certain means, and that is to live so-berly."

LINES FOUND IN A HYMN BOOK.

How the Sweet Female Worshipper Spends Some of Her Time in Church.

I suppose it is not conducive to a proper religious frame of mind, but when I find myself in a strange church, or a strange pew, I invariably look at the blank leaves of the hymn book, or rather at the leaves which were blank when the book came from the binder, for they are usually covered with little messages by the time I inspect them.

These messages are written by immature persons whose idea of the sanctity of churches will permit them to write nt not to whisper.

Yesterday morning the workmen pushed a bar into a crevice inside of the shaft and dischal a mass of material coming a ditched a mass of material, opening a small hole from and into which the air seemed to rush, accompanied by a loud noise as of escaping steam, and the wel was soon filled with vapor. "NO. 22."

Lord Randolph Churchill's Dream Regarding the Cambridgeshire Winner. The late Chancelor of the Exchequer, Lord Randolph Churchill, has taken to dreaming winners, and, what is a great deal more, dreaming them accurately. In a vision a few nights since His Lord-ship dreamed that No. 22 (Veracity) on the card had won the Cambridgeshire, and being a practical dreamer with a be lief in himself, he backed No. 22 to wir some £1,000. I have told many stories winners being dreamed, and so far as I know my stories have been true, but there is no doubt about this recent addi-tion to the list. For one moment he may have doubted whether he was a flyer a dreams after all, for the first number put up by the judge was "2" (Tenebreuse), and we began to wonder how it was we and we began to wonder how it was we had missed the white jacket and green cap, but "2" was speedily taken down. The judge had told his man to hoist "22," but the chattering round his box made his voice mandible and so caused the mistake. However, the "22" was soon put up and Lord Randolph swoke to the fact that he had developed a new accomplishment.

Judge Hawes has entered the case on his docket, and it will be up for trial either this week or next. Lawyer Weinschenk, who will conduct the prosecution. says that his client, Solomon Waisel, was standing on the sidewalk in front of Carter Harrison's residence July 4, 1886, when a ball from a Roman candle struck him in the eye, destroying the sight. The candle was a part of the fireworks being exploded in Mr. Harrison's yard. Waisel's idea is to bold Carter Harrison himself responsible for that unlucky shot.
